

Future work is coming to the home of Hamlet on August 25-28 2019

NES 2019 is organised by IDA – Danish Occupational Safety and Health Professionals and Technical University of Denmark, DTU Management Engineering

Meet human factors and ergonomics researchers and practitioners. Discuss your ergonomics take on digitalization and innovation. Expand your network.

Venue: Hotel Marienlyst, Elsinore - a short walk from Hamlet's Kronborg and the Cultural Harbour of Elsinore.

Date: 25-28 August 2019

Future Work: Digitalisation and Innovation

50th Nordic Human Factors and Ergonomics Society (NES) Conference

In 2019 we are celebrating the 50th anniversary of the Nordic Ergonomics Society (NES). The NES 2019 Conference invites you to investigate and discuss future work from an ergonomics and work environment perspective. And the thing is: Future work is already here!

The NES 2019 Conference will address the many questions in a setting that connects research and practice. We welcome contributions from researchers as well as practitioners such as ergonomists, occupational health and safety specialists and managers, labour inspection professionals, and professionals in occupational health services.

We welcome participants from all over the world to celebrate the anniversary and to discuss the Nordic way of human factors and ergonomics science and practice. We look forward to be inspired by your work and approaches.

Call for Papers

Abstract Submission

We welcome two types of abstracts for oral presentation at the conference:

Research-based abstract

Deadline for abstract submission: 1 December 2018 and

Practice-based abstract

Deadline for abstract submission: 1 March 2019

We also invite proposals for special sessions on a specific topic and proposals for workshops, which may take different forms: Hands-on demonstration of a tool or method, a joint investigation of a challenge.

For further information go to www.nes19.dk

